

Summerhall Venue Accessibility Information

Summerhall is committed to improving access to the building, exhibitions and events, and we welcome D/deaf and disabled customers.

Where possible, reasonable adjustments have been made to the venue to give the best access for customers with disabilities. However Summerhall is B-listed and over one hundred years old and not all of our venue spaces are fully accessible. We will continue to upgrade our facilities and would welcome any suggestions and advice.

Customers who need to bring medical equipment or medicines, food or drink to manage a medical condition to visit the venue are welcome to do so. If you have any concerns prior to visiting, please contact the venue.

The venue includes accessible toilets on the ground floor, 1st floor and in the Royal Dick Bar (information below).

In an emergency, please approach any member of Summerhall staff, who can provide first aid or call for a first aider if required.

Entering the building

The main entrance to Summerhall has 9 stone steps with no railing. Step-free access is via the side entrance on Summerhall Square. The entrance is clearly marked by the original Dick Vet gates.

As you enter, The Royal Dick bar is situated to your right as you come in (with a ramp at the rear of the bar) and there is a ramp directly ahead of you that leads to the Box Office, Press Office and Café.

Travelling to and from Summerhall

Taxis & Cars

On most days outside of the Edinburgh Fringe period, taxis & other vehicles can drop passengers off directly in the courtyard (using the vehicle gate on Summerhall Square & announcing their arrival using the intercom system), however there is no onsite public parking in Summerhall. On days that the courtyard is closed to vehicle access (e.g. - the festival period), taxis and other vehicles can drop passengers off directly outside the accessible entrance by the vehicle gate, in Summerhall Square.
